RAYTHEON HOST NEWEST MP

GLENROTHES, (10th May, 2006) Willie Rennie, Britain's newest MP has paid a fact finding visit to Raytheon's factory in Glenrothes.

Rennie, who became the Member of Parliament for Dunfermline and West Fife when he won a sensational bi-election victory in February, has been appointed to the Liberal Democrats Defence Team.

During his visit Rennie was briefed on the company's activities and future plans by Acting Managing Director Jim Trail before taking the opportunity to tour the site's production areas.

Commenting on his visit Rennie said, "Living in Fife I had heard a lot about Raytheon and I was keen to see the factory for myself. Having had the opportunity to visit and meet some of the management team and employees it is easy to understand why the company enjoys such a good reputation both in Fife and further a field."

RSL, the UK-based subsidiary of Raytheon Company, employs 650 people at its Glenrothes facility. RSL designs, develops and manufactures a range of high technology defence and commercial electronics.
